The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew. Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time, wearing a new cap with a red feather stuck in it. He has been skipping school that afternoon and at noon he was down by the river bank and there he met a boy named Mark. Tom has always been the best at thinking up stories and Mark likes to listen. They decided to play a practical joke on the schoolmaster and eventually the news comes all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of mistake. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.

Tom comes home at supper time. Tom is already hungry and talks about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Sally asks Tom if he has been to school that afternoon and greater evasiveness. Tom tells Aunt Sally that his coffin is still over from the schoolhouse, but that Tom’s half-brother, Buck, has sold it and is using it for a wagon bed. Tom has sworn the boy to secrecy. Aunt Sally is satisfied.

Tom and the new arrival eat in the kitchen, Tom talks about his school, and eventually clustered the newcomers the way home.
