The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischievous and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, looking black and amazed. Aunt Polly had been talking about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Iola, Tom's household, tells Tom that he cannot be skipped school that afternoon and must remain at home. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but Tom's half-brother, Sid, Tom's half-brother, shrews Tom to disguise his appearance and eventually chase the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Just passerby, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "whale alley," a kind of saddle. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at suppertime with a large black eye and is asked about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly announces that Tom will have to be skipped school that afternoon and won’t receive his dinner. Tom’s bulldog is still a part of Tom, and he decides to disguise himself to escape the house. He leaves his dirty clothes and goes to a nearby street where he sees the new arrival of a man who claims to be a whittler. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom and the new arrival’s dog chase each other and eventually choose the newcomer as the way home.
